Dear whom it may concern,

I have a bright and enthusiastic personality and consider putting other people first to collaborate with others. This character made me with colleagues and have easy access to work with neurodivergent students/clients.

I majored in special physical education at a four-year-course University in the Republic of Korea and obtained a special education teacher's license via completing a related training course. I have graduated from the master's program in Special Education concentrating on Behaviour Disorder at the University of British Columbia. I have built my career in the field of education, mainly with developmental disability and learning disability groups. The most interesting field for me, however, is positive behaviour support and inclusive education for students with developmental disabilities.

I have six years of work experience as a Special Education Teacher in South Korea and Canada, had a role in running a classroom, writing IEPs, and counselling students' families for students, coaching educational assistants and better education outcomes. I have also performed as a Behaviour Consultant at Bridge Kids Behaviour Consulting Ltd., in Richmond, and home-based intervention service in the Greater Vancouver area. My role was to create programs, make educational materials, and train new BIs under BCBA supervisors.

Communicating with students with severe intellectual disability (ID) and Autism spectrum disorder (ASD) is very demanding but rewarding. With my positive personality, I can deal with any difficulties and make things easy to solve. I expect to contribute my professional competence to well-support students with special needs whose academic skills and communicative skills potentially would be enhanced. I also expect to learn the Canadian's various cultures from all walks of life to earn fruitful experiences to become a fine educator.

I hope to have an opportunity to work with your organization and support clients with special needs. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Ramie An (Borami An)
